Eric Whitacre

Music Man

LAUREN MILLIGAN | 21 March 2011 | 0 Comments

ERIC WHITACRE is the latest talent to join the ranks at Storm - but the composer, conductor and lecturer is far from just a pretty face.

The coming year holds plenty of exciting developments for Whitacre - from headlining Abbey Road's 80th anniversary celebrations and launching an anthem-writing competition, to working with Hans Zimmer on the music for Pirates of the Caribbean 4 and writing a piece for Julian Lloyd Webber's 60th birthday concert.

"Joining Storm is incredibly exciting for me," Whitacre told us. "Meeting Sarah Doukas and her team has been inspirational. Sarah has built an exceptional business and brand, representing many prestigious artists from all over the world - with whom I am proud to be associated. Together with Storm, I hope to create new partnerships and develop projects and creative platforms that work on a number of different levels."

In April, Whitacre will launch his new virtual choir - an attempt to create the world's largest online choir, with over 2000 members from 58 countries taking part in a live webcast on Thursday April 7.
